Why do we care about a Model A?

The Model A was the next generation car following the Model T. It provided America with economic transportation continuing a tradition established with the Model T, voted the #1 Car of the 20th Century. Henry Ford started the Ford Motor Company in 1903 and produced the Model T from 1908 to 1927. The Ford Model A production began in October 1927 and continued through March 1932.

Why is it called a Model A and not a Model U, the follow-on to the Model T?

In developing cars, Ford identified model design by a letter. Ford produced the first Model A in 1903, and it was followed by other models such as the Model B and C (1905), the Model K and N (1906). They stopped changing the model number with the Model T. Ford wanted to break from tradition and begin anew. Initially, the Model A was simply called ‘the New Ford’. For some reason, they decided Model A was most apt. The 1932 cars had the first Ford V8 engine available as an option. The 4 cylinder cars were called Model B. After that, the design changed each year, negating the need for naming models by letter.

How fast will it go?

A ‘stock’ Model A in good mechanical condition will cruise all day at 45-50 miles per hour. Modified cars with after-market overdrives can cruise at 60 mph or more depending on other modifications.

What are the features of the Model A?

Four cylinder engine, 40 horsepower, water cooled, internal combustion
Four wheel mechanical brakes
About two dozen different models were available, excluding commercial models
Safety features included safety glass, brake light, bumpers, ammeter, and fuel gauges; fuel shut off in the passenger compartment, etc.

How much did they cost when produced and how much are they now?

When produced, a new Ford Tudor Sedan (2 door) cost from $495-$525. A roadster was the cheapest, ranging from $435-$520. The most expensive was the rare, Town Car (limousine) at $1,200. Presently, one can purchase a running car, called a “driver” for $6,000-$10,000. Models that are more desirable cost more. Show cars can range from $25,000 to $40,000. Rare, original models cost the most. You can buy them on eBay, but look over the car with the assistance of a knowledgeable person.

How does this car pass state emission and safety examinations?

Antique cars normally are only required to have the operating safety equipment and meet emission requirements that were in effect at the time of manufacture. If a car is registered using historical vehicle plates, it is subject to different rules of use and safety standards.

Why do people want to own Model A’s?

In addition to being a significant part of history, they are a novelty that brings a smile to many faces. They are simple to work on and fun for those who enjoy working on mechanical things. Car clubs offer camaraderie and appreciation of the era and its rich history. Many Model A owners drive cars handed down by their families as heirlooms. Many owners participate in community events in parades and displays, an enjoyable pastime. Others enjoy touring the countryside in these venerable machines.

Where can you find parts for Model A’s?

Surprisingly, it is not too hard to find parts. Many reproduction parts and specialty supply companies offer new or reconditioned car parts. One can purchase items such as new bodies or fenders for different models. Other companies rebuild engines, transmissions and other components. There are many clubs nationwide, and members frequently help one another in restoring or repairing these cars. Flea markets often yield parts.

Are these cars still available to potential buyers?

Yes. Some estimate that 250,000 Model A’s still exist, some as complete cars, others in various stages of disassembly. Antique car publications and sometimes newspapers list Model A’s for sale, as does the MAFCA website: www.mafca.com
